The Organization

MONTEREY ONE WATER IS THE INDUSTRY LEADER in water recycling and the first in Northern California to turn wastewater into clean, safe drinking water. Before the establishment of Monterey One Water (M1W), every community in the Monterey Bay area owned and operated its own treatment plant. In 1972, the United States enacted the Federal Clean Water Act, which required communities to come together to increase treatment standards and bring regional efficiency to sewer system management. M1W was formed by Monterey, Pacific Grove, and Seaside Sanitation Districts. Over the years, additional entities in northern Monterey County joined the regional system and eventually the members formed a Joint Powers Authority (JPA).

Monterey One Water's Service Areas

Now, M1W cleans wastewater for more than 285,000 residents and over 7,000 businesses residing in their service area. This equals approximately 17 million gallons of wastewater being pumped through facilities each day. The organization's processes have helped to preserve the integrity of the beautiful Monterey Bay, a National Marine Sanctuary, and the sustainability of the area's agricultural operations. M1W employs 108 full- and part-time staff members, with projected growth to 113 staff in the near future. They are governed by 10 dedicated Board Members.
